

Creating a Mental Health Safety Plan*

This worksheet is designed to help parents and children create a personalized mental health safety plan. Having a practical mental health safety plan can help parents and children avoid dangerous choices during times of crisis and elevated stress. A safety plan should identify coping strategies and resources that can help children protect themselves and help parents give support in those stressful moments.

For parents and guardians: Fill in the medical information below so that it is readily assessable if needed. If your child is experiencing mental health issues and is not currently under the care of a mental health professional, talk to your pediatrician. If your child needs immediate help, call 911.

For children and teens: Write down your thoughts for the questions on pages 2 and 3 and keep it in a place where you and your parents or guardians can look back on when you are having a bad day or going through a tough time.
